We're excited to share that Arize Federal Credit Union was recently featured in Forbes and Fortune as one of Pennsylvania's leading credit unions, not for our size, but for our commitment to community.

From helping local businesses grow to offering personalized support when others say no, Arize is proud to put people first. The article highlights our unique loan decisions made right here at home, our free community meeting spaces, and our team's real-life impact on members' daily lives.

FEATURED BOARD MEMBERS

Hugh Mose

Hugh Mose has been active in the Centre County community since 1995, when he became General Manager of the Centre Area Transportation Authority. In that role, he was encouraged to be the face of CATA and to get involved in the community. He discovered that not only was he good at it, but he really enjoyed it. Today, Hugh serves on the Arize Board in an Emeritus role. He is a long-time Rotarian, serves on the board of Centre Volunteers in Medicine, chairs the State College Borough Transportation Commission, and represents the Borough on the Centre County Airport Authority.

Hugh's connection to Arize began more than twenty years ago, when he was invited to join the board by a fellow member of his Leadership Centre County class who was then serving as Board Chair. Although Hugh had no financial background, he found that the Credit Union had values he shared, and people he enjoyed working with. He's been involved ever since.

Hugh believes Arize makes a difference in people's lives by meeting members where they are—whether it's helping young adults get started financially or offering a safe place for older members to save. He also appreciates the Credit Union's commitment to community involvement through sponsorships, scholarships, donations, and volunteer efforts. A fun fact about Hugh: for nearly forty years, he and his wife Janyce have shared their home with a series of former professional athletes — retired racing greyhounds.
